Over 120 years of economics literature from around the world

THE AMERICAN ECONOMIC Association's electronic bibliography, EconLit indexes over 120 years of economics literature from around the world. Compiled and abstracted in an easily searchable format, EconLit is a comprehensive index of over 1.4 million journal articles, books, book reviews, collective volume articles, working papers, and dissertations published since 1886 and also includes full-text book reviews published in the Journal of Economic Literature since 1993, as well as links to full text from 40,000 working papers.

EconLit provides bibliographic coverage of a wide range of economics-related literature covering such subjects as agricultural and natural resource economics, country studies, economic history, industrial organization, and methodology and history of economic thought.
