The enormous potential of more than three centuries of key primary source material can now be realised for the first time through ProQuest’s House of Commons Parliamentary Papers Online.
Unprecedented Access to this Crucial Historical Source

Parliamentary Papers are foremost among the richest and most detailed primary sources for the past three centuries, for Britain, its colonies and the wider world. As such, they constitute a major part of the world’s historical record. Parliamentary Papers influenced public opinion and social and political philosophy and provided a forum for the ideas of thinkers of the day.

Observe history in the making with over 247,000 papers and 11 million pages of original documentation

House of Commons Parliamentary Papers (HCPP) includes the complete file of House of Commons Parliamentary Papers, also known as Sessional Papers or Blue Books, dating from 1715 through to today. This includes:

- Bills – drafts of legislation, to be reviewed through various parliamentary stages.
- House of Commons Papers – documents resulting from the work of the House of Commons.
- Command Papers – government papers conveying information or decisions the Government wishes to draw to attention of the House, presented ‘by Command of Her Majesty’.

The latter two categories breakdown further into:

- Reports of Committees – Select or the Whole House. Appointed to investigate issues of concern.
- Reports of Commissioners – commissions appointed by the Crown to investigate social problems, to conduct inquiries into events, and as a preparation for legislation.
- Accounts – statistical information, originating primarily from the Treasury, the Board of Trade and the War Office/Admiralty.
- Papers – correspondence from ambassadors, governors, army officers abroad; commercial, trade and navigation accounts, statistical abstracts: judicial, taxation, etc; census data; slavery and slave trade documents; treaties.

Plus, the 18th Century Collection includes pre-Hansard debates, House of Lords and House of Commons journals, rare private bills, other legislative materials, and reports and papers presented to both Houses.

Shaping the Pages of History

Many contributors to the papers were found outside the official world, providing evidence and supplying memoranda to committees and commissions. The labours and concerns of Matthew Arnold, John Stuart Mill, Michael Faraday, Charles Babbage, Edwin Chadwick, Marconi, Keynes and Beveridge are recorded in these pages, alongside thousands of others. The evidence gathered by numerous Committees and Royal Commissions influenced public opinion and social and political philosophies as disparate as those of Marx, Dickens and Disraeli. They are the working documents of government for all areas of social, political, economic and foreign policy, showing how issues were explored and legislation was formed.
NEW! Hansard (1803-2005)

Now available to all customers of 19th and 20th Century House of Commons Parliamentary Papers

The full text backfile from Hansard, the Official Report of debates in Parliament, from both the House of Commons and House of Lords, is now included in HCPP from 1803 to 2005. Hansard provides an edited record of parliamentary debates and questions, including written ministerial statements and answers to parliamentary questions as well as the transcripts of debates.

The publicly available XML files created by the Hansard Digitisation Project (led by the Directorate of Information Services of the House of Commons and the Library of the House of Lords) are the source for this material, which is being made available in its entirety at no extra cost for all institutions currently accessing the collections.

This significant enhancement enables the sessional papers of the House of Commons contained in HCPP to be searched alongside Hansard from one interface.

Researchers can use Hansard alongside HCPP, to see how the legislation, reports and other documents in HCPP were discussed and debated in Parliament throughout the 19th and 20th centuries.

- The debates around the final passage of the Bill outlawing slavery in the British Empire in 1833.
- The discussions in the House of Lords about the passing of the Parliament Act of 1911 which limited their power.
- The debates on the Suez intervention in November 1956, alongside the treaties and agreements concerning the Suez Canal.
- Debates on the European Union and the single currency and potential for a referendum, together with Treasury papers on economic and monetary union, reports of the Select Committee on European legislation, and proposed referendum bills.

18th Century House of Commons Parliamentary Papers

18th Century Parliamentary Papers

This new collection contains printed documents from 1688–1834 that illuminate many aspects of 18th century history, from the widespread use of automated workflow during the industrial revolution to the shaping of a new democratic system during the American Revolution. Coverage also includes Edward Jenner’s work with vaccination, the abolition of slavery, navigations of James Cook, the Seven Year War, the Battle of Trafalgar and the tenure of Great Britain’s first Prime Minister, Sir Robert Walpole. The collection was made possible through an innovative public/private cooperative publishing model, ProQuest partnered with JISC, BOPCRIS (British Official Publications Collaborative Reader Information Service) at the University of Southampton, the British Library, and the University of Cambridge.

Combining Resources to Unlock the 19th Century

19th Century House of Commons Parliamentary Papers

The origins of HCPP lie in the Chadwyck-Healey microfiche edition of the 19th Century House of Commons Sessions Papers. Published between 1980 and 1983, the microfiche edition includes filmed images of 79,527 papers, covering 4.1 million pages. The accompanying 5-volume index, the Subject catalogue to the House of Commons Parliamentary Papers 1801–1834, was the first thematic listing of the complete set of parliamentary papers. HCPP Online brings these resources together, unlocking a century of policy making, investigation, correspondence and reporting for researchers of all kinds, shedding new light on topics ranging from the Industrial Revolution to the interaction of colonial forces with indigenous peoples in Australasia and North America.

Bringing the Most Comprehensive Primary Sources into the 21st Century

20th Century House of Commons Parliamentary Papers

Bringing the Most Comprehensive Primary Sources into the 21st Century

20th Century House of Commons Parliamentary Papers includes a comprehensive subject index for the century which is based upon the HMSO/POLIS Subject Catalogue. Published between 1980 and 1983, the microfiche edition includes filmed images of 79,527 papers, covering 4.1 million pages. The accompanying 5-volume index, the Subject catalogue to the House of Commons Parliamentary Papers 1801–1834, was the first thematic listing of the complete set of parliamentary papers. HCPP Online brings these resources together, unlocking a century of policy making, investigation, correspondence and reporting for researchers of all kinds, shedding new light on topics ranging from the Industrial Revolution to the interaction of colonial forces with indigenous peoples in Australasia and North America.

Current Papers from 2005 to the present

21st Century House of Commons Parliamentary Papers

In an ongoing digitisation project, the 21st Century House of Commons Parliamentary Papers covers areas such as Scottish and Welsh devolution, counter-terrorism, future plans for the UK armed forces including Trident, and NHS reform.
"Both searching and results management are the epitome of best practice."

Martin Myhill, The Charleston Adviser

The interface is designed for the general user and the expert, with field searching and browsing from selected titles.

Seamless cross-searching with Hansard (19th and 20th Centuries)

From the results screen users can choose to view the full record or the full text.

Access to the Subject Catalogue is available through an extensive Table of Contents.

Key Features of HCPP Online:

- Integrated searching – customers can acquire seamless access to all three centuries of content via a single interface.
- Searchable full text for the entire file of parliamentary papers, created by scanning from microfiche or print originals where necessary, and applying optical character recognition (OCR) which adds hit-term highlighting and makes it easy to locate terms of research within large documents.
- Full indexing using the authoritative Peter Cockton’s Subject Catalogue of the House of Commons Parliamentary Papers, 1801–1900, as well as the POLIS and HMSO Indexes – which have been combined and overlaid to provide the most reliable and consistent indexing available.

“Both searching and results management are the epitome of best practice.”

Martin Myhill, The Charleston Adviser
Vital to your Library Collection

Keep your House of Commons Parliamentary Papers (HCPP) current by adding years from 2005 onwards. HCPP is updated quarterly with new full text and indexing, making it a vital resource for current affairs as well as an essential historical archive for any library.

Furthering Research

The delivery of the Parliamentary Papers online has far reaching implications for the academic world:

- The volumes that make up the parliamentary papers are now digitally preserved and available irrespective of shelf-space.
- Research is quicker, easier, and more accessible to students at all levels.
- New areas of investigation are opened up by the ability to accurately and efficiently excavate this essential primary source material.

International Relevance

House of Commons Parliamentary Papers includes a huge range of content relating to the wider world: as well as the many volumes covering British dominions and colonies, there is extensive reporting on foreign affairs, including detailed trade statistics, correspondence relating to international events, and reports from British diplomats abroad on matters of interest in their location. For example researchers can use HCPP to find out how much coffee was imported into Holland in 1896, or the number, tonnage, and flag of steam and sail ships entering Brazilian ports in 1907.

Around half of the nineteenth century papers are focused on colonial or international matters.